

AMP's

Posted by djmle - 2007/06/19 04:25

---

I need to buy a new AMP for my set up.

I have two technics, two cdj's, two huge ass speakers and have to use all this for a radio show, practice and recording mixes every now and then.

I sometimes take the set up on the road for certain gigs, but usually just keep it at home, so I don't need anything obnoxious as far as power goes.

Anyone have any recs on brands?

I am looking to spend around $150-$200.

NuBreaksRockz BTW

---

Re: AMP's

Posted by datapusher - 2007/06/20 13:40

---

Alesis RA300 depending on your speakers, I can run two 15s two monitor ones loud as F.... what I use for DJ setup / monitoring

---

Re: AMP's

Posted by djmle - 2007/06/25 20:23

---

thanks data man.

I'll look into that one.

I like Loud as F___!!!

werd

---

Re: AMP's

Posted by wino1 - 2007/07/23 22:55

---

You know, if yer tryin to save a buck, i would look into some of the oldskool amps from back in tha day. You know the ones with tha big-ass silver nobs and the long flippy switches. They are well made, built to last, and usually have mad watts up inside. Mine is made by, or says on it, "modular component systems" and i have taken it all over the place to parties, indoor, outdoor and it's kicked ass and well kept a list of names. People have even told me it blows away their new amps. Good luck in tha search.

Спецпа!

=====