The fish bored deep, ran, zig-zagged and the long bamboo pole bent with his weight and his rapid, driving strength. Then he came up thrashing at the surface and then was down again and the young man found that although the fish felt as strong as ever the tragic violence was lessened and now he could be led around the end of the jetty and up the canal. "Softly does it," the waiter said. "Oh softly now. Softly for us all." Twice more the fish forced his way out to the open sea and twice the young man led him back and now he was leading him gently along the jetty toward the cafe. "How is he?" asked the waiter. "He's fine but we've beaten him." "Don't say it," the waiter said. "Don't say it. We must tire him. Tire him. Tire him." "He's got my ann tired," the young man said. "Do you want me to take him?" the waiter asked hopefully. "My God no." "Just easy, easy, easy. Softly, softly, softly," the waiter said. The young man worked the fish past the terrace of the cafe and into the canal. He was swimming just under the surface but was still strong and the young man wondered if they would take him all the way up the canal through the length of the town. There were many other people now and as they went by the hotel the girl saw them out of the window and shouted, "Oh what a wonderful fish! Wait for me! Wait for me!"
