Afghan Headspin – Scanners

Clip: http://downbeatproductions.com/ceos/dbp009_A.mp3

With an intro that can be mixed over any track, this one starts off stripped down and moody before the initial attack! As you move thru the first half you'll hear skippy drum programming not heard in many other tracks. Once you enter the breakdown section, your hit at all angles with a menacing bassline lead. As the track builds, you hear the main sample 'that's a whole new bunch of crazy shit'. You best take cover because this one drops like nothing you've ever heard before! Jaw-dropping vicious strikes of bass that cripple instantly create the flow of this tune as it rides strong throughout! This track is dangerously driven in every way possible and is aimed squarely at the dance floor. The Afghan boys are showing their talents in the studio on this one. So, if you like it heavy, look no further cause this one is relentless from start to finish in true tear-out form!

Afghan Headspin – Scanners (Anti-Science Remix)

Clip: http://downbeatproductions.com/ceos/dbp009_AA.mp3

Taking the original samples and tweaking them out big-time, Anti-Science delivers a stomping remix. Strong drums and loads of edits, this one really thumps it out. As in the original, the breakdown is a big part of the tune, only this time around it's a bit more tweaked out and gnarly. When the body drops, you're set for a dangerous ride into a world of tremendous bass, bleeps and atmospheric mood which are strategically placed to assault your ear! Cut up snippets of the original track and slick lfo action make up the vibe as the tune goes along nicely. Always morphing throughout, this one will keep you guessing as it's always changing and twisting along. Anti-Science comes strong once again with nothing but solid production and it really shows on this remix

Well, what can I say..... This tune blew my Fkin teeth out, play with a health warning. Sick bass and twisted layers give us maximum dance floor fun. Both the original and the anti-science remix are pure filth... Drop this and watch it roll:) Top marks for a top label:)

Peace
