For those old enough to remember video games and arcade machines in the 80s, Bionic Commando needs no introduction. For those not old enough Bionic Commando was a cult 8-bit classic featuring Rad Spencer, a crack commando with a bionic arm that functioned as a grappling gun. It was most famous for the innovation that players could swing rather than jump in this really-quite-difficult platforming classic.

To celebrate the release of the next-gen re-imagining of Bionic Commando on 22nd May, three heavyweights of the underground electronica music scene have been drafted in to add their unique takes on the original soundtrack, with quite frankly stomach rumbling results.

Dubstep warrior Rusko leads the pack with a killer wobble-bass rework, having taken the world by storm with his jump up style, Rusko's remixes and remixers include A-Track, Claude Von Stroke, Adelle, Audio Bullies, Buraka Som Sistema, Drop The Lime, Diplo and many more, Rusko delivers and a killer remix taking his version into uncharted, epic territories.

Institubes main man Surkin (a massive fan of the original game himself) takes things on a more musical journey, deciding to take the soundtrack and warp it into his own four to the floor flavour. With his roots in ghetto house sub genres and the classic French disco sound here he keeps is gritty production sound but let's the 8-bit soundtrack float freely in the mix.

Finalising the package is Drum & Bass heavyweight Clipz; his tracks such as Download and Your Talkin Rubbish have destroyed dancefloors across the globe. Releasing for the likes of Full Cycle, Hyper and own label Audio Zoo, here he delivers an absolute deebee bomb – riiiiiiiiinnnnnnsssse out!

The Bionic Commando remixes will be released on Bionic Recordings and will be FREE TO DOWNLOAD from Rusko / Surkin / Clipz Myspace Pages:
